ENGLISH WOMAN CROSSES OCEAN; PLANE WRECKED

Mrs. Beryl Markham Unhurt When Plane Forced Down on Nova Scotia Coast After Daring Flight

LOUISBURG, N. S., Sept. 5.—Mrs. Beryl Markham's tiny monoplane, "The Messenger," was wrecked at Balene Cove in a forced landing at 11:20 a.m. M.S.T. The intrepid aviatrix was unhurt in the crash, it was believed.

Mrs. Markham's nose and face were scratched, but she was apparently not seriously harmed. She notified the Cape Breton Air Club that she was safe and asked that a car be sent for her at Louisburg.

"The Messenger" was brought down in a field and was badly wrecked. She was within 200 miles of New York.

First woman to fly the Atlantic alone from east to west, the tall, athletic-looking society matron launched her hazardous venture in cloud-heavy skies at dusk yesterday.

The drone of a plane believed to be hers was heard over Castletown, Berhaves, on the western shore of Ireland a little less than four hours after she left the runway at the Royal Air Force airfield at Abingdon in Berkshire.

From Ireland her course lay over the open sea—the ocean graves of her ill-fated predecessors in eastward attempts—the Hon. Elsie Mackay and the Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, who perished with the men pilots who flew their ships.

No Radio Equipment

Her turquoise-blue, stock model plane carried no radio equipment. No ship report could be sighted by her.

She battled a 30-mile headwind in negotiating the air-line distance of 385 miles from her starting point to Castletown.

Her ship, "The Messenger," loaded with 260 gallons of gasoline, lifted perfectly into the air from the long Abingdon airfield runway at 6:50 p.m., British summer time (10:50 a.m., M.S.T.).

Next stop United States, I trust," Mrs. Markham said. Her seven-year-old son slept peacefully in a countryside home at the time.

After a week of nerve-racking waiting for favorable weather, the aviatrix was visibly nervous at the start.

Her course after leaving Ireland gave her an 1800-mile overwater hop under a light full moon before she approached the head of the harbor near land on the western side of the Atlantic.

She said she expected to average 150 miles an hour on the projected 1800-mile flight. She was possible landing in New York at 10:50 a.m., M.S.T.

Her take-off came only a day after Dick Merrill and Harry Rich had flown from New York to Wales. Richmond, stage and screen entertainer, shook his head when he heard Mrs. Markham had gone.

"It would be folly to fight against the weather," he said.

Edmonton Bulletin's "Home of Tomorrow"

By J. EDWARD NORCROSS
Edmonton Bulletin Staff Correspondent

For the purposes of this article, pounds sterling are stated in dollars at the rate of five dollars to the pound.—EDITOR.

LONDON, England, Sept. 5.—"Assuming," I said, to the manager of the building company, "Assuming that I wanted to take advantage of this Housing Plan, what could you do for me?"

"This Housing Plan" was an advertisement copied from a notice-board directing attention to a row of attractive cottages in the outskirts of a large city and intimating that I could have my choice of them for $2,500.

"We can lend you anything up to 85 per cent, say $2,125. We charge 4 1/2 per cent interest and, the interest being reasonable, the loan would be paid off in about 15 years," was the reply.

"What has the rate of interest got to do with the period of the loan?" I asked.

And then, I learned a peculiarity of building society loan methods. First of all, one takes out shares to the amount of the loan. This is a survival of the old co-operative building society practice when a building society consisted of a number of people who bought shares at so much a week, the money, as it accumulated, being spent from time-to-time in the construction of houses for individual members, drawings being held to decide who was to have each loan as it became available.

Get Quick Action

A $500 share costs seventy-five cents a week, which covers loan and interest.

I found, therefore, that if I could put down $375, plus $35 for surveyor's charges, mortgage fees and stamp duty, I could step into a comfortable five-room house, with all modern conveniences, and a bit of garden at front and back—granting, of course, that the company's surveyor agreed that the property was worth $2,500.

After that, it would be merely a matter of paying the company about $3.20 a week and the city rates, which would bring the annual outlay up to $250, more or less, depending on whether the rates in that particular locality were high or low—$20, or a little more, say, a month. If the land were leasehold there would be, also, a ground rent of $5 or $10 a year.

The rent of such a house would be $250 a week and the tenant would have to pay the rates in addition.

The tenant, not the owner, except in certain special cases, pays the local rates in Great Britain.

But I found that I could do better than that. Under one of the earliest of the Housing Acts, passed forty years ago, cities and municipalities are allowed to lend money to people anxious to become their landlords.

So I went to see the Town Clerk. Yes they would lend me money up to 80 per cent of the value and would charge me only 2 1/2 per cent. The money would be repayable by monthly, quarterly, or half-yearly instalments, at my own option, in twenty years.

"Seeing that you give me such liberal terms," I said, "I will take the money, and I will pay it off in twenty years."

PRICE SYSTEM COLLAPSE IN FOUR YEARS

Technocrat Aide on Way to Edmonton Predicts Big Changes

CALGARY, Sept. 5.—Steadily mounting unemployment and increasing debt will force abolition of the present social order by 1940, predicted Jonathan P. Glendon, field organizer for Technocracy who is here today on his way to Edmonton where he will address a series of meetings at the Empire theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday next.

By the end of 1937, the speaker declared, 17,000,000 will be added to the present unemployed, which he estimated at 14,000,000 on the North American continent.

Two alternatives face the world in 1940, when Technocracy, said the speaker, will come into being. One is the introduction of a new method of administering the world; the other is the disappearance of civilization from the continent.

"We will deliver the potential abundance which is available, which it will not now, being distributed in the present system," he said. "Peak employment will never improve under the present system. If we are experiencing a slight improvement in conditions these days, it is only temporary, due to the money our governments are pouring into the relief channels," Mr. Glendon claimed.

Crises are impending, he said, the government would result in a collapse within thirty days, he declared.

SAINT JEAN DE LUZ, France, Sept. 5.—

The Spanish government today rejected foreign diplomats' proposals for "humanizing" the Spanish civil war. Daniel Garcia Mansilla, Argentine ambassador accredited to Madrid, issued a communique saying the ambassadors' proposals to Madrid had received a reply which constituted a polite rejection. The ambassadors, made exiles from their Madrid posts by the Spanish war, had sent proposals to the Spanish belligerents asking them to exchange hostages rather than execute them.

MADRID, Sept. 5.—The reorganized Spanish government under the leadership of Premier Francisco Largo Caballero, there is an official force today behind field troops fighting Fascist rebels.

All other political interests are to be subordinated to this end," an official statement declared.

One of the first acts of the new cabinet, which includes two Communists, was the appointment of a generalissimo to direct all military operations against the insurgents. Some sources said Gen. Martinez Barrio had already been named to the post, but a high official of the ministry of war asserted, "A definite decision has not yet been reached."

The war ministry reported additional victories in Toledo province, where strong columns of Fascists have been attempting to cut a path to the provincial capital.

The advance has been halted, the ministry asserted, and government troops are consolidating their position.

Vancouver Italian Lost in New York on Eve of Sailing

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Deserters of the Missing Persons Bureau and Postoffice today found Pietro Poisson, 55, of Vancouver, who disappeared in this city some time yesterday. He was a trifle bewildered but still in possession of $500 in cash, and the couple said as planned for Italy.

Poison had left his wife at a hotel yesterday. When he did not return last night, Mrs. Poisson reported his absence to the Missing Persons Bureau at Police headquarters. At 2 a.m. today he was walked into a police station, and somewhat incoherently explained that he was lost, that he and his wife had registered at an east side hotel, the address of which he had forgotten. He said he was due to sail for Italy. The police decided to keep him until sailing time. They

TERMS OF DEBT ACT SPECIFIC PREMIER SAYS

Very Definite That Maximum of Five Per Cent Collectable

Terms of the act reducing and settling debts reached at the special session of the legislature are specific but had a maximum of five per cent, is collectable on debts which arose after July 1, 1932. Premier, however, said the Premier, "However, if a debtor feels that he is unable to pay more, then there is nothing to prevent him from doing so. That is his own affair. We are just setting a maximum that can be collected."

Asked to comment on a statement by Sir John L. Borden, C.M.A., member of the legislature for Western, that the new act would have the effect of "letting the debtor off the hook," Premier Albert said he could not say as the figure used by Mr. Borden was his own compilation.

He said the maximum new legislation is in effect and no interest is collectable on old debts created before July 1, 1932, as the debtor is entitled to pay off the principal of the debt at any time, interest or principal being repaid starting November 15, 1937, without interest.

Turn to page 5, columns 1 and 2, for a concise summary of the Debt Act.

BADGES, GUNS PILED WHEN POLICE FIRED

All Members of Montreal Branch Relieved By Premier

MONTREAL, Sept. 5—One hundred and fifty police badges and 150 police revolvers were piled high last night in the offices of the Montreal division of the provincial police force here and a lone switchboard operator was sole custodian of the division's headquarters.

For all members of Montreal division of the force—from Chief Maurice Lalonde to the newest rookie—were dismissed Friday by Premier Duplessis and there wasn't an officer on duty.

By six o'clock last night the men had been informed of the government's action and had vacated headquarters. They piled their revolvers and police badges on their desks.

There wasn't a prisoner in the provincial cells either. The diminished force transferred them to the city jail.

The switchboard operator—he answered calls as usual and referred the cases to the city police.

BUILDING ACT GIVES BORROWERS EASIER TERMS

Authorities Aid Those Wishing to Own Homes

Borrowers come rushing to us in order to get the building societies' money for the purchase of a house. The building societies are now in a position to advance money to buy any house for sale that you take a fancy to. Even if it is forty years old, you can get the money. There are also restrictions as to residence. If one borrows from the council, one lies oneself to live on the premises for at least ten years. Finally, local authorities are not allowed to lend money on properties worth more than $4,000.

WAR BROUGHT PRESSURE

It is doubtful whether there ever were enough houses in this country to permit all the family groups who wanted separate homes to have them. The situation became acute, however, when the troops came back after the war.

For four years, building had been almost at a standstill and even had conditions been normal, there would have been tremendous shortages to make up.

But they were not normal. In the first place, there was a sudden increase in the demand for houses, hundreds of thousands of men seeking to get up their own homes. In the second place, the nation had awakened to the fact that hundreds of thousands of men were "left for heroes to live in" and were pulled down and replaced.

READ A HARVEST

The private building reaped, and it reaping a harvest. With building societies and councils now ready to mortgage people who could afford to live in their homes, it was never thought it possible before to get into the market.

But homes were also needed for multitudes of people who could pay small rents. There were, indeed, building houses for them, but not a sound provision for an economic standard.

The government had to come to the rescue. During the last sixteen years, the Housing Act, as it followed Housing Act, local authorities were made responsible for housing that had been provided for the population, the government at first undertook to do so under the Addison measure of 1919, and the subsidies and grants to the extent of the difference between the rent the tenants could pay and the economic rent.

PROVED COSTLY

This proved very costly, the taxpayer having to provide, in fact, having to provide, as much as five dollars a week per house for houses erected under the scheme. The government cancelled the scheme, the government offered to pay $30 a year per house for 20 years. The Labor Government in 1924 raised the subsidy to $45 for 40 years, so that the rent of a house, say $25 a week, down to $22.50 a week, could be paid as much as heads of families, say $10 to $15 a week could afford.

When the Conservatives came in, they were reticent and drew down in building small homes, to be followed by the Labor Government. The Labor Government's subsidies, first in 1924, and then in 1929, were brought in a Slum Clearance Act.

The National Government, faced by a financial crisis, cut off the subsidies again in 1932, but the nation was by that time, thoroughly alarmed and thoroughly alarmed of them, and slum clearance continued. Last year, the National Government put through an Act providing that local authorities should receive, from the national treasury, nine dollars a year for 40 years for every person removed from a slum and rehoused.

HAS GONE ON APACE

Under these several pressures, housebuilding has gone on apace since the war. The 1921 census showed that there were 7,768,685 people dwelling in England and Wales. Ten years later, notwithstanding the destruction of thousands of houses in the slums, the number had increased to 9,909,835, nearly a million-and-a-half more. It was then estimated that another 7,500,000 would be needed between 1931 and 1941.

It must have been an under-estimate for that number has already nearly been reached, and new dwellings are being produced at a rate that has never been before. Last year, private enterprise has provided 270,000 and the local authorities 50,000, 320,000 altogether, more than 1,000 for every working day.

The aggregate figures are astounding. Since 1921, the new homes have been created in England and Wales, enough to house the entire population of Canada. Ninety per cent of these are the result of the National Government's subsidies.

NO SIGN OF SLACKENING

Last January, Mr. Neville Chamberlain told the House of Commons that the house-building program, probably being pushed and that the proposed new railway construction would usefully provide employment when the building industry slackens down.

There is no sign of slackening at present. Certain figures, although only partial, furnish an index. They refer to building construction of all kinds and not to house-building alone, but are none-the-less useful in showing the general trend. They give the total values of the building for which plans have been approved by 146 local authorities for districts with a combined population of 17,215,000.

For the five years 1927-31, the average was $240,000. In 1932, the amounts rising year-by-year, until 1935, and then dropping slightly to $313,000,000 in 1935. The review of confidence following the measures taken by the National Government to stabilize the country's financial position, has been a great success.

TWIN MYSTERY THRILLER FOR RIALTO SCREEN

"Two in the Dark" Headlines Walter Abel and Margot Grahame

Solves of cryptic crimes will find their detective powers society fast to follow the labyrinthine twin mysteries in "Two in the Dark," RKO Radio's thrilling film drama, headlined by Walter Abel and Margot Grahame, at the Rialto theatre, opening Monday.

First they are confronted with the quandary of the unidentified man who finds himself on the fog-bound Boston Common, blood curdling down his cheek from an ugly wound on his head, his memory a blank, and his identity unknown to himself. A detective show gets to help him orient himself, but in so doing establishes the terrifying fact that he is unmistakably linked to a brutal murder.

RAIFLES POLICE

In this strange American victim who is drawn steadily into the vivid voices of damaging clues, the crime which completely baffles the police with its tangled ramifications.

From the gifted pen of Gelett Burgess, noted American fictionist, comes the plot upon which this titillating mystery is based.

SECOND FEATURE

In the added attraction Cicely Courtneidge appears in "Things are Looking Up," a British production.

As the sister is in direct succession for the position of head mistress, Cicely feels that her place must be kept warm until she returns. With the many complications Cicely deals in intimate fashion, sustained by such capable artists as Max Miller, William Gargan, Mark Lester, Judy Kelly and Henrietta Watson.

Not only is "Things are Looking Up" excellent fun, but all-around family entertainment of outstanding appeal. It is an unvarnished feast of fun, rich comedy at its best. While the fight for the ten-thousand-pound—algebraic—unorthodox—provides laughter, the circus scenes with star performers are among the funniest ever seen on the screen.

The Rialto's practice of distributing to the ladies "Breath of Spring" dinnerware will be continued as usual, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Stars Disclose How To Retain Men's Interest

If you want to keep your man, let's not overlook the little things.

That's the announcement by Hollywood actresses each of whom came through with a hint which has proved invaluable in retaining the interest of the opposite sex.

The five, Gladys George, Carole Lombard, Mary Clark, Helen Broderick and Eleanor Whitney, stated: "Miss George: 'Never ask a man where he's been.'"

Miss Lombard: 'Never keep a man waiting.'

Miss Carole: 'Never baby a man who's disinterested.'

Miss Whitney: 'Baby your man when he's sick.'

Miss Whitney: 'Don't let a man see you when you're not at your best.'

ACE PICTURES TO BE SHOWN BY MANAGERS

Rialto, Capitol, Strand and Empress Book Big Super Specials

Edmonton theatre managers will do their part to make the 1934 Labor Day holiday a success, and varied bills have been assembled for the big midnight matinee performances which will usher in the big day. At all downtown theatres doors will be thrown open at 11:30 Sunday night for ticket holders, with general admission at midnight for those who have not secured tickets in advance.

Arrangements have been made for a complete street-car service to all parts of the city following the shows.

At the Rialto, Manager William Long will screen "Seven Sinners" with Edmund Lowe and Constance Cummings. One of the new Paramount British productions which have set a high peak of entertainment for the 1934-35 season "Seven Sinners" is an action melodrama of unusual perfection.

Speed action, excitement follow in thrilling sequences. It is a story of a new racket, with blue-blooded hands working hard on a continental train, and a playboy detective in a new kind of setting.

At the Capitol, Manager William Long will screen "Seven Sinners" with Edmund Lowe and Constance Cummings. One of the new Paramount British productions which have set a high peak of entertainment for the 1934-35 season "Seven Sinners" is an action melodrama of unusual perfection.

At the Strand, "My American Wife" will also screen an outstanding bill, with "The Old Times" will be the piece de resistance of another all-star band, Francis Lederer and Fred Stone will star in this picture.

At the Empress Manager George Findlay will also screen an outstanding comedy in which Betty Kelly and Charles Chase head the bill. "The Second" attractive comedy, new reel and other features will give Empress patrons an evening of real entertainment, and altogether Edmonton holiday night will be able to start the holiday right with an evening at the theatre.

Director Gets Sound Effects For Nothing

Director William Thiele, filming "The Jungle" at Hollywood, has secured the services of the famous sound effects men, the Hays Brothers, for nothing.

Yesterday the company shooting "Jungle" was on a near-by location. In the company were about 300 natives and all started to beat tom-toms, creating a great deal of noise.

Thiele stood the racket for some time.

Then he sent a sound man, armed with a microphone, into the jungle, and used it for sound effects in his own jungle picture.

SIMONE SIMON

Fame found exotic Simone Simon as the new star. Simone appears in "Girl Demolish," her first Hollywood production, directed by Herbert Marshall and Ruth Chatterton. It opens at the Capitol Wednesday for a three-day run.

Famous Stars To Share Honors In Romantic Drama

Good news to the countless fans of each is the announcement that Ginger Rogers and Charles Boyer, top-notch screen favorites, will be costarred in the near future. The picture selected by Sam Briskin, vice president in charge of production, as an ideal vehicle for the pair is "Perfect Harmony," an original by the noted French playwright, Jacques Thery.

Miss Rogers, who recently completed "Song Time" with Fred Astaire, will first make "Watch Your Step" with Astaire, and then "Mother Crazy" with Charles Boyer, before beginning "Perfect Harmony." She is rated one of the foremost "box office" stars of the screen today.

Boyer's romantic appearance and great acting ability have won him worldwide fame. He was recently costarred with Marlene Dietrich in "The Garden of Allah," and had appeared opposite Katharine Hepburn, Claudette Colbert and other leading screen stars.

"Perfect Harmony" will be directed by Mark Sandrich, under the production eye of Edward Kaufman.

Studio Huddresser Is Much Envied Job

The envy of millions of women! That's Mary Astor, who, through Grey Gougers, has about 30 times a day—and gets paid for it.

As Wild Bill Hickok in the production, "The Plainsman," Hickok is making the picture which is the Indians that history reveals all the early comic makers, and his hair long as that of the Sioux and Cheyenne will be as fast as a scalp as he has at the time.

So Mary Ann, Paramount studio huddresser, is destined to keep his hair locks in order.

No one in Hollywood was especially surprised when Adolphe Menjou and Bruce Cabot decided to go back to double divorce suits just a month before their divorce decree was to become final.

W. C. Fields Appears As Patent-Medicine Man In Carnival Film

A carnival of the 80's with a background of calypso music, animals, snake charmers, barkers and concession operators, is setting for the W. C. Fields picture, "Poppy," opening Monday for a three-day run at the Empress. The scene is one in which Fields is completely at home.

Fields appears as a patent-medicine vendor and shell game worker who finds "separating" a rival from his financial burden. A twist ending, without equal, in his comedy, he has "Poppy," eighty-year-old and who has grown up as a carnival fellow.

W. C. Fields

Fields and Poppy, played by Rochelle Hudson, arrive at a small village as a carnival party. Fields manages to arrange for space for his medicine concession and embarks on his sales drive.

Meanwhile, Rochelle has fallen in love with the son of the village mayor, Richard Cromwell, and the two plan to marry.

HEARS OF HUGE ESTATE

Fields hears of a huge estate in the village which lies dead, awaiting the discovery of the heirs. Rochelle's age. Unknown to the girl, he arranges to have her proven the right owner.

His scheme is revealed only a short time after Rochelle has been given charge of the estate. It seems that the girl is about to drift into carnival life, but a twist ending leaves her settled in the village, looking for a new career to follow heads for the open country to follow her chosen career from town to town.

A drill-packed drama, "I'd Give My Life," is a second feature.

Stars Desert Coast For Texas Premiere

Hollywood was temporarily deserted by some of its celebrities this week when the movie spotlight shined on the Texas capital in Dallas, where the world premiere of "The Texas Rangers" was held.

Directed by George H. White, Jean Parker, Lloyd Nolan and Bonnie Barent, "The Texas Rangers" is a picture of the frontier, which included a banquet given by Governor James V. Allred and the unveiling of a Ranger statue which he gave to the Texas Rangers.

O'Leary-Cooper Wedding Vows Are Solemnized

Wearing an exquisite gown of midnight blue velvet, beaded to the figure and releasing its fullness at the knees, with becoming white trim to match, and carrying a bouquet of crimson roses, Marion Ruth Cooper, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Cooper was a really lovely figure for her wedding to Claude O'Leary, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. O'Leary of Barons, which was solemnized at a charmingly arranged ceremony in St. Stephen's church at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning.

Snap dragons and gladioli were an artistic background for the service which was read by Dr. W. M. Grant.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attended by her sister, Miss Dorothy Cooper, who was dressed smartly in a model of black velvet, with wavy hair and coronet of pink roses.

Mr. Victor Barin was best man in a black and white tuxedo at the organ. During the signing of the register, Mr. Norman McClellan sang softly.

More than 30 guests were present at a reception arranged later in the Corona hall, where Mrs. Cooper received with the bride party. She was becomingly attired in a black and white costume with white jacket and small black hat. Her carriage was of crimson roses.

MISS BEATRICE CRAWFORD, who played the first solo strains of pipe organ music ever heard in Edmonton, and since then has gone on playing through the lives of the people, their joy and sorrow, and name synonymous with the growth of their appreciation and demand for the best in music.

One of the two original women members of the musical festivals committee, Miss Crawford has been invited to the great of interest in the work, until from one day's commissioning, annual affair, has expanded to occupy a week. Her work is repaid in full by the reports that this year even the remotest little communities in the Peace River district were first enough with enthusiasm to conduct their own splendid festivals.

Miss Crawford played the organ in the old McDougall church when Jackson Hanley was their choir leader and later presided at the organ in Robertson United church. She was also leader of the United Church and official co-ordinator for the Edmonton, and later, Alberta festivals.

Come the war and Miss Crawford went on playing—organ and piano to amuse the soldiers, and now for the remnants of the splendor of the war, she is now on her way she arranged weekly programs in the Red Cross hall, adjacent to the University hospital.

At her own request her name is never mentioned in connection with these entertainments but she is content to hand on to serve the best.

Miss Crawford is a teacher of piano at her studio in the Institute of Applied Arts building on 10th street and at Oliver school.

A choral member of the Canadian Club, and a member of the Women's Musical Club, Miss Crawford has contributed to the club life of the city too.

She loves the outdoors and the University hospital, the activities of the Alpine club of which she is a member.

Her music provides her main pleasure in life, and she particularly enjoys playing, and reading, especially biographies.

Miss Crawford's grandfather was an old chieftain in eastern Canada, and she has a great admiration for the man who was the first white man to see the land.

She is the daughter of the late Mr. Richard T. Crawford and Mrs. Crawford who later sent her to study under Dr. H. H. Hewitt, principal of the Hamilton College, Ontario, where she was the first woman to receive a first music degree.

The sunny smile of bright cheeks, with yellow linen table cloths and cups in a matching color, will be the glow over the reception room at the home of Mrs.

Floral Altar Is Setting For Fall Ceremony

St. Faith's Church, its altar blushed with gladioli in shades of pink, was the setting for one of the loveliest weddings of early fall on Saturday morning, when at nine o'clock Marie Taylor, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Taylor became the bride of Mr. Percy A. Fairbrother, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Fairbrother of Calgary.

Miss Canon C. P. Clough performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law Mr. J. P. Gittens of Calgary, the bride was radiantly lovely in a smartly tailored, elegant, simple line in an especially becoming shade of pink, with a crown of white flowers and a long veil.

Mr. Taylor's becoming marriage dress was of navy crepe, fashioned in straight simple lines and worn with a picture hat to match. Her flowers were pink roses.

Mr. H. Adair of Calgary supported the bridegroom.

Relatives and immediate friends gathered for a wedding breakfast at the Corona hotel.

The bride's table, lined with tall pink tapers and graced with carefully laid flowers in shades of pink and white, and the wedding cake, with its white icing and red ribbon, were the center of the wedding feast.

Mr. and Mrs. Fairbrother are spending their honeymoon at Banff and Lake Louise and will be at home to their friends in Edmonton toward the latter part of September.

For her motor trip the bride wore a travel suit with accessories in red.

Out-of-town guests for the ceremony included Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Fairbrother, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Gittens, Mr. and Mrs. H. Adair and their two children, Alice and Elizabeth, Mr. and Mrs. John Baylock and Miss Bessie and Mr. Douglas Baylock of Calgary.

Sub-Arctic Airplane-To-Ground Communication Robs North Of Its Former Pose Of Isolation

The north talks! Advanced and improved this year, the radio communication system of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals in the far north has become so efficient that its facilities are regarded as commonplace by the scattered residents of that vast hinterland.

Equipment has been rushed in this summer and assembled to give the remote army reserves in the sub-Arctic and Arctic the latest in air-land communication.

COMPLETE REPORTS

Planes now can not only act as mobile weather reporting stations but also as mobile radio stations, with the addition of some equipment, weather reports can be sent from the air to the ground, and vice versa.

A long time made the radio communication system in the north. When the first radio station was set up at Inuvik, Yukon, Fort Norman and Fort Smith, on the Mackenzie and Thelon rivers, the radio communication system was in its infancy. A more powerful transmitter was placed at Fort Smith to keep in contact with the new air-land communication system, at Inuvik, where the bulk of the radio communication system is located. The radio communication system is now in its full swing, and the north is no longer isolated.

The Royal Canadian Corps of Signals radio station at Fort Smith on the Slave River, Northwest Territories (top), is one of the main bases for radio communication in the Canadian Arctic. The lower picture shows a Canadian Airways mail airplane of the Arctic air mail route, which now can keep in touch with bases on its course since the installation of radiophones in the far north.

SUPPLEMENTAL STATIONS

In addition to this, the air-land communication system has been supplemented by the addition of stations of their own, some at points which are not yet served by the R.C.C.S. Canadian Airways have stations at McMurdo, Goulfords, Coles Bay, Inuvik, Great Slave and Yellowknife, and several other points of mining activity on the north shore of Great Slave Lake. The air-land communication system is now in its full swing, and the north is no longer isolated.

ALL THESE POINTS ARE ON THE WAY TO OR WITHIN THE MOUNTAIN REGIONS OF LAKE ABITABA, GREAT SLAVE AND GREAT BEAR LAKES, WHICH HAVE BEEN OPENED UP SINCE 1930.

USED IN SEARCH

Paramount instances of the service, although not of a type which is general in the north, where a comfortable travel is taken for granted, is the use of the radio communication system in the search for lost R.C.A.F. planes in the barren lands of the north. Radio-equipped planes in the search are keeping in touch with the ground stations, and the search is being conducted in a more efficient manner.

LATEST EQUIPMENT

The stations equipped this year all have hand-cranked or battery-operated engines formerly used exclusively. The latest in radiophone

Man Overboard! He Falls In Mud

WINDSOR, N.S., Sept. 5.—"Man overboard" was the nautical cry from the steamship King tied up at a wharf here when Frank Parker fell between the pier and the steamer. Thirty feet down he plunged, but there was no danger of him drowning. The Bay of Fundy tide was out, and Parker landed in the soft mud.

With ropes and ladders the Windsor fire department rescued him from the flats as the tide came surging in.

Teacher Injured In Cycle Crash

BASHAW, Sept. 5.—Ben Holt, teacher of the Methodist school, was badly bruised and suffered severe laceration on the face, leg and arm when riding his motorcycle in the school yard Thursday morning. He crashed into a grain truck coming around a bend. The truck was driven by F. Little. He is suffering from shock.

HOLIDAY BORN OF AGITATION HONORS LABOR

Once Fixed Sept. 1—Comes Later This Year Than Usual

By the Canadian Press

Directed by the vagaries of the Gregorian calendar, Labor Day appears Monday is its high spot for laborers. Pinned to the first Monday in the month, it will be years—1942—before this holiday comes again as late as Sept. 7.

Time when Labor Day is in the first celebration of the day and initially its observance was set on the 4th of the month. Some years later, to enable folk to take advantage of the long weekend, the holiday was given Monday, and started on its perambulations over the seven years.

Labor Day in September is peculiar to the United States and Canada. The European countries in May 1, often marked by disturbances sometimes revolutionary in character. The North American Labor Day, while observed by labor organizations in parades and speeches exalting the worker and the power and responsibilities of labor, is welcomed by the people generally as a weekend holiday—the last for the summer.

It is written that in the Middle Ages, in England and in Europe, frequent processions were organized by trade guilds to exemplify their pride of industry and craftsmanship and obtain recognition of their position in the scheme of things.

Institution of a recognized Labor Day in the United States and Canada was the result of the activities of the Knights of Labor. This powerful organization, which in the 1880s of the last century had ceased its activities in 1904 when other labor organizations took the lead.

There were demonstrations for labor recognition in various United States and Canadian cities from 1882 to 1888. In Canada the agitation approached the stage of a political issue. Labor became a force to be reckoned with in the affairs of the nation.

In 1884 Sir John Thompson, then prime minister of Canada, introduced in Commons a measure making Labor Day a statutory holiday throughout the Dominion. The same year a similar move was made in the United States and the observance of the day soon spread throughout the continent.

SLIM TORONTO LASSIE HIKES ACROSS CANADA

Lenora Booth, 21, Arrives in Edmonton—Hopes to Find Work

With a case of $12, a slim, brunette, wavy-haired girl left her home in Toronto two and one-half months ago to hitch-hike her way across the continent to the Great Bear Lake area in British Columbia.

Lenora Booth, 21 years old, expected to find work in the orchards but her plans were foiled when blood-poisoning in her foot put her hospital at Lehigh for five days. She proceeded as far as the town of Lethbridge, where she found some work on a farm, but it was too lame to continue and started on her way again.

WORKED WAY ACROSS

She had worked her way across the Dominion, doing odd jobs of housework on farms and in towns, to the point where she was to find a job in the orchards. She had worked her way across the Dominion, doing odd jobs of housework on farms and in towns, to the point where she was to find a job in the orchards.

STRAINED HER

She had strained her back while working on a farm, and she was unable to continue. She had strained her back while working on a farm, and she was unable to continue.

CLEAN AND NEAT

Despite her 3,000 miles of travel, the young woman appeared at the major's office clean and neat, her simple dress and light coat freshly laundered and pressed.

HOPES TO GET JOB

"I might have got work cooking for the theatre crew, but I couldn't handle a big job. I am strong and healthy, and I hope I can get a place as a waitress."

QUEEN'S HOTEL BIDS ARE NOT SATISFACTORY

Offers For Purchase Or Leases Increase Would Result in Reduction Milk Consumption

Decision was reserved by Judge A. A. Carpenter, chairman of the Alberta Public Utilities Board, Saturday morning, in the application of the Edmonton and District Milk and Cream Producers' Association seeking an increase of 90 cents per 100 pounds of milk and increased cream delivered at local dairies.

TO LEASE PROPERTY

Disinfectant with offers for the purchase or lease of the 425,000 Queen's hotel, which has been taken over by the city under law for the purpose of the city council Friday night instructed commissioners to negotiate for better offers on the property.

SHARPLY REFLECTED

Restricted purchasing power had been the cause of the increase, which would be sharply reflected, falling on the consumer. The increase would result in a radical reduction of milk consumption.

Police Court

Convicted on charges of shop-lifting and theft of a $73 radio set, a man named Howard, 30, 101A Avenue, Frank W. Smith, 101A Avenue, was committed for trial at the police court.

SHOULDER INCREASE

He advocated that the distributors should shoulder the increase, as it was the reason the price was made by them from the purchase of surplus over and over and that the price was paid for as the rate of 144 cents a hundred pounds.

SEARCH BEING PRESSED FOR LOST AIRMEN

Rescuers Race to Beat Freeze-Up in North Barrenlands

Facing to beat the northern freeze-up which towards the end of the month will shut down on flying for a period of three to four weeks until sufficient ice has formed to permit ski-equipped aircraft to take the air, six air crews of the north are still relentlessly searching for the two missing R.C.A.F. airmen.

NO NEWS REPORTS

There have been no news reports from the field of the search for Flight Lieutenant S. W. Coleman and Leading Aircraftman J. P. Harty, who took off from Humber Lake, in the back river country, on August 17, for a 240-mile midnight flight to Fort Reliance.

COULDN'T NEW GROUND

It is considered unlikely that an accident befell the airmen or that they were forced to land with engine trouble on the flight, as their course has been thoroughly covered by now. The search is extending every day to cover two or three towns towards which they might have strayed.

ANNOUNCEMENT HOME OPENING MADE SHORTLY

The Bulletin's "Home of Tomorrow" Open For Public Inspection

Already viewed by thousands of Edmonton homeowners and visitors from the surrounding district, The Bulletin's "Home of Tomorrow," erected at the corner of St. George's Crescent and 102nd Avenue will be ready for visitors some time within the next few days.

The last word in modern building construction, built according to the specifications of the Dominion Housing Act, the "Home of Tomorrow" is all that the name implies. For the past few days a corps of interior decorators working under the direction of experts of the T. Eaton Company, Limited, have been busy putting the finishing touches to the furnishings of the new home, and announcement of the official opening date will be made in The Bulletin on Wednesday, September 9.

OPENING ANNOUNCED WEDNESDAY

Until the date of the official opening is announced no visitors will be admitted to the new home, but when the doors are finally thrown open for public inspection the visitors will find a fully modern, low priced home, built for Canadians, and meeting the requirements of the average family of four with a moderate income. Every possible labor saving and health giving device has been incorporated in the home, which will be absolutely the last word in home construction and furnishing.

Watch for the announcement of the opening date in The Bulletin of Wednesday, September 9.

A saving in fuel consumption can be made by accelerating draft in first and second and then shutting into high gear as quickly as possible.

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL COCHRANE Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

The Times were the new snowman. Said one, "I cannot understand how anything that's made of snow and ice can walk around. I'm going to call him and see if he can talk right back to me. I must admit, this is the strangest thing I have ever found."

The snowman answered, "Never mind, fair lady, the big snowman replied."

"My goodness, but you are that fast. Not very long will this fool last," snapped Dotty. Then, up to the house the folks had lived in, he called, "It is the first joke I have ever told."

mind. I'm just the same as you, you'll find. I walk and talk and smile and cry. Right now I'll play with you.

Just wait a minute," Dotty said. "Why not join us in lunch, instead? If we can see a snowman eat, that will be something new."

"Okay," the funny man replied. "Come on, now, walk right by my side and we'll go to the large kitchen that I see straight ahead."

Then he began to walk along, as Dotty said, "My, but, you're strong." "Much stronger than you."

tried. Now all you little tots are going to get a big surprise.

you all, is not a snowman, lots, at all. Just watch, now, and my mother will appear before your eyes.

"I covered her with snow, you see. It was so real, she near fainted me." And then the young mother shook the snow off, to the ground.

"Well," Dotty said, "that sure was a trick. The new man, a better trick. Were glad it is your mother, 'cause we like to have her 'round.' None of the Times build a new fort in the next story."

Curious World —By William Ferguson

ADMIRAL PEARY NAMED AND PLACED CROCKER LAND ON THE MAP. YEARS LATER, THIS "EXTENSIVE NORTHERN LAND" WAS FOUND TO BE A MISJAG.

THE SUPERSTITION THAT A FOUR-LEAFED CLOVER BRINGS LUCK IS SO OLD THAT NO ONE KNOWS ITS ORIGIN.

For centuries, there had been little doubt that land existed in the area which Peary later named Crocker Land. So realistic was the mirage, which existed under certain atmospheric conditions, that anyone who saw it was convinced. Later, MacMillan attempted to explore the land, and it vanished before his eyes.

TODAY IS OURS

By NARD JONES

CHAPTER XII
IN THE days that followed, the newspapers were full of the political scandal which had involved Steve. For months there had been rumors of graft in that administration, and now the lid was off. Slowly and carefully the newspapers had been gathering their facts, determining to tell the town in a responsible manner in the city hall—and now that the barrage had begun they were spouting nothing. There were columns of testimony, of charges and denials, and there were countless photographs. To Judith's mind it seemed that the newspapers were filled with nothing else—and when ever Steve's name was mentioned his name stood out for her as if it had been set in boldface type.

Steve's dinner with Edna Harris she had heard nothing from the young doctor, and more than once she wished for his light-hearted but sensible counsel. But through his friend and lawyer, John Crow, Bob kept her posted as to the progress of the litigation. He said that Steve's position was clear, and that he was being involved more as a material witness than anything else. But Judith wondered if Bob could be lying to her feelings.

She would never forget the night that the found Bob once had told her that Steve Fowler was about to turn a corner. It would mean a turning point in her life. During the weeks of Steve's trouble, she had felt drawn to him more and more. She realized now how difficult, how perhaps impossible, it was for a woman to forget a man when for four years their lives and hopes and dreams had been inseparably intertwined. And the night that Steve telephoned excitedly, "I've found new, Judith, and I'm on my way over," she thought to herself: We were never apart. All I've got to do is face that Steve never again.

Within five minutes after the telephone call, Steve burst into the apartment without knocking, rushed to Judith and took her in his arms. For a long time neither spoke, but stood clinging to each other in the centre of the room. Then Judith drew away gently and said, "Tell me about it, Steve."

"It's just that I'm relieved of any part in the thing. You can read all about it in the paper," Steve said. "I took her in his arms again. The important thing now is that we're together, Judith. As far as the company is concerned, the deal is completed, and I get my bonus. And I get a raise, too. We can marry any time in the future. I held her off at arm's length, his eyes searching her face happily. "How about tonight?"

"Oh, not tonight, Steve," Judith replied. "I've always wanted a nice wedding, Steve, with lots of flowers, and a friend. He kissed her again. "Sure, darling!" His expression grew triumphantly serious. "You see, you've heard right. I was all alone, I kept telling you that the thing to do was wait, and that everything would be all right."

"Yes," said Judith slowly. "You were right, Steve." "He took up his hat. "I'll have to run along, darling, and get some sleep. I'm pretty tired out after all this time. Why don't you tell me how you get on in the morning? We could have breakfast together."

"That would be fine, Stephen," the doctor said, and Judith stood staring at it, not moving, her hands clenched at her sides.

Noon the next day at the lunch counter in the basement of the building, Virginia said, "You left early this morning. My guess is that you had breakfast with Steve."

wondered at Judith Howard's dull voice, the lack of sparkle in her usually bright blue eyes. Why? She gave no real quality to her conversation.

Judith wondered, too, about herself. And the remainder of the week, seeing Steve often, she wondered more and more. She had believed that slowly her strange attraction for him would pass; that gradually they would find each other, that through the cloud of their quarrel. But if Steve recognized her anxiety, if he noticed any change, he gave no sign of it. Bitterly he talked of their coming marriage, discussed it with the Bents, made tentative plans to get the date. The minute she was to get the date, she would go to the date. I saw a house the other day when I was driving out near the boulevard.

That was the continual theme of his talk, filling Judith's heart with panic. Killing her heart with panic and doubt, until she knew that she must see Edna Harris. She must hear that friendly voice, and see that friendly smile, assuring her that everything was all right—that if she had to leave once she must love him now.

The evening of the day Steve had made her promise to get the wedding date she telephoned the City Hospital and asked for Dr. Harris.

"Doctor Harris has taken a month's leave," the operator said. "It is possible that Doctor Harris is resting in town." Judith held tightly to the telephone, as though it were a straw and she were drowning.

"That's possible," the girl said, her tone tinged with resentment at Judith's insistence. "But I don't think it's likely. Doctor Harris may transfer to another city. Sorry I can't help you further."

There was that metallic sound as the operator broke the connection. Judith stood up; and now, suddenly, her little body seemed filled with strength and purpose with beauty and rhythm. In the space of a second she became an entity once more—became Judith Howard.

In less than an hour she was at the City Hospital, and when she found the young nurse who had befriended her on the night of Francis Jarvis' injury she lost no time in telling her why she had come.

"I must see Doctor Harris," she said the nurse. And the girl at the switchboard would tell her where he was.

Hand-Kissing Bearded Man Fired From School

MOSCOW, Sept. 5—Charged with kissing his sweetheart's hand, Khrepko had to seek the intention of Moscow to get back to a technical school at Kizil-Yul in the Kazan Republic.

He was accused of resurrecting feudal and aristocratic traditions by the director of the school.

MacBrien Is Still Believer In Horse Raising

OTTAWA, Sept. 5.—Sir James MacBrien, commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, apparently believes in developing horse raising.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

TORNADOES
ARE FAR MORE COMMON IN THE INTERIOR OF THE UNITED STATES, EAST OF THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS, THAN ANYWHERE ELSE IN THE WORLD.

T. J. KING KERSUS

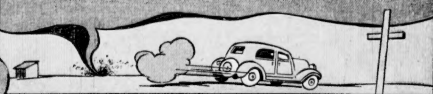

THE MOST COMMON FORM OF A TORNADO IS A FUNNEL-SHAPED CLOUD, TAPERING DOWNWARD TO THE EARTH.

SOMETIMES THE CLOUD RESEMBLES A GREAT, COILING SERPENT.

TORNADOES MOVE AT AN AVERAGE SPEED OF 40 MILES AN HOUR, BUT THE WIND VELOCITY INSIDE THE WHIRLING MASS IS BELIEVED TO BE ABOUT 500 MILES AN HOUR! IN OPEN COUNTRY, A MOTORIST CAN OUTRUN AN ONCOMING "TWISTER."

THE ACTUAL PATH OF DESTRUCTION RANGES FROM A FEW FEET TO HALF A MILE IN WIDTH, BUT IN ITS BORDERS, BUILDINGS ARE BLOWN TO BITS, TREES ARE UPROOTED, AND LOSS OF LIFE IS APT TO BE ENORMOUS.

AFTER A TORNADO, STRAWS FREQUENTLY ARE FOUND DRIVEN THROUGH TIMBERS.

TORNADOES SHOULD NOT BE CONFUSED WITH CYCLONES! THE LATTER ARE SEVERE STORMS SEVERAL HUNDRED MILES IN AREA, REVOLVING ABOUT A CALM CENTER TO AN OBSERVER, A CYCLONE APPEARS TO BE ONLY A STRAIGHT WIND.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

By Blosser

A MAN DIED AND LEFT HIS ENTIRE ESTATE OF SEVENTEEN HORSES TO HIS THREE SONS... ONE SON GOT HALF, ANOTHER SON GOT ONE-THIRD AND THE OTHER GOT ONE-NINTH!

FUNNY HOW THAT WORKED! THEY BORROWED A HORSE TO MAKE THE NUMBER EVEN, THEN DIVIDED, AND GAVE BACK THE BORROWED HORSE!

ONE HALF TO HIM... THAT'S SIX... ONE-THIRD TO THE OTHER KID, THAT'S FOUR, AND ONE-SIXTH TO YOU, THAT'S TWO! SEE HOW IT WORKS?

BUT THE SONS COULDN'T DIVIDE SEVENTEEN HORSES... SO A FRIEND LOANED THEM ONE... THAT MADE EIGHTEEN! ONE HALF WAS NINE HORSES... ONE-THIRD WAS SIX HORSES, AND ONE-NINTH WAS TWO HORSES!

BUT HOW CAN WE DIVIDE ELEVEN ICE CREAM CONES IF ONE OF US GETS A THIRD... ONE GETS HALF, AN' THE OTHER GETS ONE-SIXTH?

BUT, OSSIE... SIX AND FOUR AND TWO MAKES TWELVE!!

NINE PLUS TWO, PLUS SIX EQUALS SEVENTEEN! THAT'S HOW THE HORSES WERE DIVIDED, AND THE FRIEND TOOK HIS BACK! SIMPLE ARITHMETIC, FOLKS! FIGURES DON'T LIE!! NOSR!

HEY, WOTSA IDEA TAKIN' MY CONE?

BUT, GEE... THAT MAN SAID FIGURES DON'T LIE!!
